

OCL Music: Long Term Plan

Brief overview

Year 7: Engage, enjoy, experience

In Year 7, students arrive with a variety of musical experiences, skills and knowledge. Teachers work closely with students to affirm and acknowledge all prior musical learning and to ensure that those who have previously learned instruments can use them in lesson and are signposted to instrumental lessons and extra curricular ensembles as appropriate.

Classroom music in Year 7 initially aims to immerse all students in high energy, compelling, expressive whole class singing that builds confidence and develops a sense of musicianship in all children. The unit culminates in a performance for parents, raising aspirations and the profile of music making for all children. Next, students learn basic rhythm notation using the Kodaly method and physical body percussion through the STOMP scheme. Students improvise and compose together in small groups, beginning to develop small group ensemble and social skills.

Whole class keyboard skills are taught by ear, using recent pop melodies, bass lines and riffs, before a return to small group work but now with more challenging content, drumming polyrhythms and singing in harmony in the traditional African music scheme.

Students are introduced to music technology through a short loops project, before moving on to learning about and how to play a melody from the Hall of the Mountain King. This is a return to keyboard skills, but now combining the rhythm notation and keyboard skills learned at the beginning of the year with pitch notation on a staff.

Brief overview

Year 8 Music: Commit, cultivate, create

By the start of year 8, students have developed general musicianship staying in time with a pulse, singing with a group, playing simple parts on the keyboard and have basic music technology skills. The Year 8 music curriculum is designed to enable students to complete the introduction to popular music instruments and to give them an opportunity to make a choice about which instrument they will commit to, cultivating focus on one instrument that will result in competent performance skills.

Students start by learning the guitar, deepening their understanding of chords and riffs and reading chord charts and tab. Next, students learn about Haydn and deepen their understanding of the orchestra as they develop their music technology skills through the Haydn's Trumpet Concerto project. When classes work as a band for the first time, students have the opportunity to commit to an instrument they will focus on, utilising the procedural knowledge that they have previously developed in singing, keyboard and guitar schemes, now embedding their procedural proficiency on their chosen instrument. Students cultivate improvisation and composition competence through whole class, then small group improvising and composing in response to short film clips.

Traditional music is the final scheme of the year, introducing students to a new genre of music which they use their instrumental skills to explore. Academies choose a traditional music genre that represents students in their academy and which is not covered elsewhere in the curriculum. Students learn the features of the chosen genre and play as a whole class ensemble then in small ensembles before composing and improvising in the style, all on their chosen instrument, developing their confidence and performance standard as well as their ensemble skills.

Year 9 Music Stimulate, stretch, secure

Year 9 students begin the year confident and with basic competence on their chosen instrument. Throughout this year students secure their procedural proficiency on their chosen instrument while also stretching their knowledge and music making to new musical traditions, styles and contexts. Initially students are stimulated by immersing themselves in music that they already know well. Having previously worked as a whole class band, the 'Making the Band' unit is their first opportunity to rehearse together in small groups on their chosen instruments. Students' music technology skills and understanding of orchestral music is stretched next in a sequencing project based on the first movement of Beethoven's 5th Symphony. The spring and summer term are dedicated to two long projects, giving time for deep musical learning in jazz and songwriting. Students explore the power of Jazz and its role in the civil rights movement and then bring together their prior instrumental, music technology and composing experience to write their own song.

Year 10 Music GCSE (OCR J536)

Year 10 of the GCSE Music course lays strong foundations for students in rehearsal and performing habits, declarative knowledge in relation to a wide range of styles and the procedural knowledge and proficiency required for playing their chosen instrument as well as composing. Students begin the year focusing on solo rehearsal and performance discipline, ensuring that this foundational area is secured from the start of the course. At the end of each half term, students perform on their solo instrument and receive feedback on their performance, ensuring that they build confidence, technical expertise and expressive qualities in their playing across the year. The Areas of Study (AOS) begin with popular music which is typically most well known to the students and so builds confidence while deepening knowledge and understanding. Rhythms of the World draws students out beyond their current musical preferences and knowledge into the richness of music from a range of cultures around the world. Film music ensures engagement with complex orchestral music and the power of music to represent thought, action and feeling. Within each AOS, students learn about each style's context, musical features and relevant theory and embed this declarative knowledge through listening exercises as well as playing and composing in each style. The AOS are increasingly challenging across the year in terms of musical complexity, breadth of knowledge required and the musical and composition tasks related to them. Throughout the year students' music technology and composition skills are developed in an introductory unit as well as through each of the AOS. This ensures that students are ready to work on their first full composition in the summer term, firstly working with their teachers on a scaffolded piece and then working independently for their NEA. Listening and musical analysis skills are developed through each of the AOS as well as regular home learning for musical vocabulary, listening assessments three times in the year.

Brief overview

Year 11 Music GCSE OCR J536

By the start of Year 11, GCSE students have strong declarative and procedural knowledge in each of the core concepts and as such are ready to embrace the most challenging AOS – Concertos Through Time. Through this AOS, students engage with some of the greatest Western Classical music ever written as well as deepening their understanding of staff notation and related music theory. Experience playing and composing in each of the AOS has prepared students for their second composition and for ensemble and solo performance final recordings. Through further music theory teaching, listening exercises and practice questions, students draw together their knowledge from each of the AOS with their listening and musical analysis skills, ensuring that they are ready for the listening paper at the end of the year.
